“...Hochman, who has been influential in Democratic politics for five decades, met Real when they worked together in the U.S. attorney's office. Several years later, Hochman used his connections to Pierre Salinger, John F. Kennedy's onetime press secretary who served briefly as a California U.S. senator, to get Real appointed U.S. attorney for Los Angeles in 1964. Two years later, Real was appointed to the eight-judge district court bench....
